
Volumes

Erip Publishing

The assessment of disability

Volume 1

L. Nota, Jean A. Rondal and S. Soresi
2000

A range of composite evaluation procedures may be used for the analysis of the needs of people with disabilities: with this work, after summarizing some methodological problems found commonly within the theory of measurement and psychological testing, the authors present a series of tools that can be used by those who, from a professional point of view, are involved in the assessment peculiarities of people with disabilities who are turning to social and health services. The procedures selected could play an important role in planning the habilitation and rehabilitation treatments planning and in improving their effectiveness for the increasing integration and participation levels of people with disabilities.

- The assessment for treatment of disabilities
- Systems and assessment tools
- Neuropsychological assessment
- The evaluation of the effectiveness of treatments

The assessment of disability

Volume 2

S. Soresi, L. Nota and Teresa M. Sgaramella
2000

- The neuropsychological assessment
- Assessment of adaptive behaviour
- Self-determination skills
- Social disability and psychopathology
- The assessment of professional skills
- The assessment of quality of life